The first tidings of the sad event came in a bulletin to the "News" which was promptly posted for the benefit of the public, and information concerning it conveyed to the public offices where it was the occasion of much regretful discussion throughout the day.

On learning of it at the executive office Governor Wells gave directions that the flag be placed at half mast over the joint city and county building and in a short time Chief Janitor Siddoway had the Stars and Stripes in a position indicating the sorrow of the people, over the demise of the distinguished citizen who held the second highest office of honor in the gift of the American commonwealth. BOUND OVER FOR ASSAULT. Ogden Court Binds Pidcock Over on that Charge Today.

Special per Deseret Telegraph. Ogden, Utah, Nov. 21.-This morning at 10 o'clock in Judge Wardleigh's court the preliminary hearing in the case of the State of Utah vs Ralph Pidcock, charged with assault with a deadly weapon upon the search of John Seifert, was heard. The first witness was Seifert, who testified that on Sept. 29, 1899, he, with several other men, were in the Vanderviles saloon on Washington avenue taking a drink when Ralph Pidcock, the postman, entered and delivered some mail.

Mr. Seifert stepped up to him and said, "Come and have a drink," but idcock refused, eaying: "I don't want a drink, go away and mind your own business," but he (Pid-cock) did not leave the saloon, but stood and talked to the bartender for about five minutes, then started for the door when Seffert called him a vile name, making him angry, and he came back at Seifert, saying:

"I'll make you take that back," and immediately commenced dealing out blows on Seifert's face and head with his right hand, and the left arm, which has been cut off, had the iron hook he uses attached to it, and with this he tore Seifert's left eye out and caused him other bodly injury.

The next witness was Wm. Bennington, whose testimony was very much the same as that of the preceding witness. The case was then argued by County Attorney Halverson for the State and Attorney Allison for the defense, after which it was submitted to the court, who rendered the decision shown to bind Pidcock over as charged but that he would bind him over to dis trict court, on the charge of assault and battery, with bonds fixed at $1,000. The county attorney nevertheless says a complaint will be filed in district cours charging the plaintiff with an assault

Neither of the messages above referred to, though dispatched on the days following the date of the alleged fight, mentioned any great fights or Boer defeats. On the contrary, both distinctly state that beyond a false alarm on Tuesday evening and a little increased shelling Thursday and Friday, causing little damage, everything was perfectly quiet and the garrison chafing under its enforced inactivity. Nevertheless special dispatches from Estcourt today enlarge on the reported battles, and insist that the Boers received a more terrible lesson Wednesday than in any previous fight.
